Big Monsoon Rains Falling in Indochina

Red-Led Rebel Attack May Be Slowed Down By Seasonal Downpour

HANOI, Indochina (AP)—The long-awaited big seasonal monsoon rains hit Dien Bien Phu and all of North Indochina today as French and Vietminh artillery kept up their violent duels across the battered ramparts of the fort.

In its usual brief morning communique, the French high command described the situation at Dien Bien Phu as "unchanged" and said there had been no important land fighting in the past 24 hours.

Since the rebel artillery attack stopped Sunday, the French have believed a third all-out Vietminh infantry assault on the shrunken fortress defenses might come at any time.

Many observers expect the monsoons to hamper or halt Vietminh operations and seriously slow transport of the rebels' war supplies from Red China. The French hope this will force their enemy to taper off his efforts to overrun Dien Bien Phu's battered and outnumbered defenders.

BUT THE ADVENT of the big rains, accompanied by violent lightning and thunderstorms, also retarded the French counterattack. Little seas of mud oozed from the one-time dust bowl's red earth, slowing the French tanks and armored vehicles.

The heavy clouds and sheets of rain forced the French war planes to taper off their heavy attacks on the rebel legions tightly circling the northwest bastion and the lines of trucks and coolies bringing them food and munitions. Only yesterday U. S.-supplied Corsair fighter-bombers had swelled the French pilot air force for the first time for a record day of raids on the Vietminh.

Despite the weather, French transport planes kept on their drops of men, war material and food into the beleaguered fort.

The Vietminh's heavy anti-aircraft guns again and again threw up curtains of fire at the low-flying transports. The fortress gunners worked desperately to seek out the rebel batteries and silence them. In the fortress' northwest sector, believed to be the avenue the rebels will use for their next drive on the French headquarters, the defenders and the Vietminh blasted at each other with mortars, heavy machine guns and automatic arms. There the opposing trenches were only 300 feet apart.

American Flier Hurt In Indo War

HONG KONG (AP)—An American civilian pilot flying supplies to besieged French union forces at Dien Bien Phu is a casualty of the bloody battle for that Indochina fortress.

The flier is Paul Robert Holden of Greenleaf, Kan., who suffered severe wounds in his right side and right arm when Communist anti-aircraft fire hit his plane over Dien Bien Phu.

Holden is the third listed American casualty of the eight-year-old Indochina war. Two American women, employees of the U. S. consulate at Saigon, were slain March 8, 1948, by a Vietminh ambush outside Saigon. They were identified as Mrs. Jeanne R. Skewes and Lydia Ruth James.

Lock-Picking Dog Opens Five Doors

CLEVELAND (AP)—Buck, a lock-picking shepherd dog, returned to his home in East Cleveland yesterday after working his way through five locked doors.

Mrs. William P. Carothers left Buck at Jensen's Green Road Animal Hospital April 19. But Buck, who disapproved of incarceration, did back the bolt on the door of his kennel, pushed through a swinging door and then went through three more doors with automatic locks. He was found by his owner yesterday in South Euclid, about three miles from the Carothers house.

Asian Cease-Fire Proposal Talked

Britain Said Ready To OK French Plan To Halt Indochinese Fight

GENEVA (AP)—The East and the West discussed Indochina informally for the first time at the Far Eastern conference today amid reports Britain is ready to back a French proposal for a cease-fire in the Southeast Asia battleground. Meanwhile, North Korea proposed Korea be unified by a general election to be conducted along the lines which Russia proposed for Germany in Berlin last February. The Russian plan on Germany was rejected by the West.

Australia, New Zealand Study Indo Situation

WASHINGTON (AP)—Australia and New Zealand were reported today to have expressed strong interest in joining the United States in possible united action to save Southeast Asia from communism.

Both governments were understood to have stopped short of a firm "yes" only because of Britain's refusal to adopt a like course until after the Geneva conference with Red China and Russia.

But Australian and New Zealand interest in the plan put forth by Secretary of State Dulles is reported strong enough that American officials are hoping the two will persuade Britain to join up rather than split the British Commonwealth.

Dulles was said to be pressing his united action plan at Geneva even though informed American officials regard the fall of the Indochina stronghold of Dien Bien Phu as only a matter of time.

The loss of Dien Bien Phu to the Red-led Vietminh, they said, would make all the more imperative united action to rescue Indochina.

LAST NIGHT, 12 key members of the Senate and the House, both Democrats and Republicans, were given a State Department fill-in on Indochina and other world trouble points. The briefing by Acting Secretary Walter Bedell Smith was based on messages sent by Dulles from Paris and Geneva.

Coming away from the briefing, several of the lawmakers commented that "things look dark all over."

One of them, Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.) said the "next few days will be of vital importance to the West." Smith, chairman of a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on the Far East, said the coming day or two "should tell the story at Dien Bien Phu."

Britain's willingness to join Australia, New Zealand and other nations in a united front against Red encroachment in Southeast Asia could open the way for free world countries to reinforce French Union forces with military units of their own.

Senate Defeats Bill To Extend Rigid Farm Props

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate defeated today an effort to extend rigid government farm price supports on major crops for a year through 1955.

By a 48-40 vote, it scuttled an amendment to a special wool bill offered by Sen. Ellender (D-La.) and a group of other farm state lawmakers.

The vote was a victory for the flexible and lower price support plan urged by President Eisenhower and Secretary of Agriculture Benson although not a direct test on the issue.

Norway Jails Russian Spy

VARDØ, Norway (AP)—A district court convicted a Soviet citizen of Norwegian descent on charges of attempted espionage today. The court gave him a sentence of one year in jail.

The defendant, Edvin A. B. Hansen, was found guilty in a two-day trial behind closed doors. He was charged with trying to spy on Norway for a foreign power and having entered Norway from neighboring Russia illegally.

The Hansen trial was the first of a series of related espionage cases scheduled to be heard in Oslo and in the northern province of Finnmark, which borders on the Soviet Union. Five Norwegian spy suspects are slated for trial beginning May 5.

Molotov met with France's Georges Bidault this morning at the latter's villa and at the Frenchman's request. Reportedly they talked about what countries would take part in the conference's future talks on Indochina, slated to begin after the Korea discussion.

It was not known whether Bidault broached French hopes for a halt in the Indochina fighting.

But a highly informed conference source said Britain agreed today to join France in seeking an immediate cease-fire for the Far Eastern war.

This source said Prime Minister Churchill had telephoned Foreign Secretary Eden from London at least twice last night in reaching the British decision to back up a French call for a halt in the Indochina fighting.

U. S. REACTION to the reported British move was not immediately known. But the Americans have expressed belief that the fluid character of the largely guerrilla Indochina war would make any cease-fire hard to enforce.

The Indochina talks were as yet in the informal, small-group stage. The 19-nation Far Eastern conference agreed at its opening session yesterday to take up general debate on Korea first.

The Molotov-Bidault talks were the first contact of the Western Big Three with Russia on Indochina. The 19-nation conference is scheduled to take up that war after its discussions on Korea.

Bidault arranged to see the Soviet foreign minister after the Russian failed to show up yesterday for an informal talk on Indochina with French minister, U.S. Secretary of State Dulles and British Foreign Secretary Eden.

The Western Big Three reviewed the situation in France's Far Eastern colony and were reported to have agreed on the nations they want at the table when Indochina comes up.

Diplomatic sources believed Molotov's failure to meet with the three Western ministers indicated a decision against any "Big Four" gatherings while Communist China's (Premier-Foreign) Minister Chou En-Lai is in Geneva.

This was regarded as part of the Communist attempt to put the Peiping regime on a basis of equality in all big power consultations here, something the Americans have said they will not accept.

An anticipated East-West tangle on Red China's status was sidestepped at yesterday's opening session of the conference but there was some indication Molotov might be holding off until the talks turn to Indochina.

Khrushchev Getting New Red Honors

NEW YORK (AP)—Nikita S. Khrushchev has been singled out again for an unusual honor, indicating his powerful position in the Soviet setup.

Two outstanding Soviet leaders gave addresses, both important, in Moscow yesterday. One speech was delivered by Premier Georgi Malenkov, the other by Khrushchev, first secretary of the Communist party's Central Committee.

Malenkov's speech attracted more attention in the outside world because he spoke first and because he mentioned the important subject of atomic weapons.

But Malenkov addressed the house of the Soviet Parliament which usually is considered the junior chamber, the Council of Nationalities.

Khrushchev spoke later to the Council of the Union, considered to be the senior house. It is the chamber of which Khrushchev and Malenkov are members and to which Stalin belonged.

Khrushchev's speaking spot would seem to carry the greater prestige. All the Russian party and government leaders present at these meetings will be quick to catch the hint.

At the last meeting of the Supreme Soviet, last August, only Malenkov gave a keynote address. That was when he announced Russia had the hydrogen bomb.

His position as co-keynote speaker in the Supreme Soviet is leading foreign specialists to wonder whether Khrushchev now does not have as much or perhaps more power than Malenkov.

Nation's Governors Slated For Briefing On U.S. Affairs

WASHINGTON (AP)—Top administrative leaders today began secret briefing of the nation's state and territorial governors on major foreign and domestic problems.

Foreign affairs was first up for discussion at the two-day meeting called by President Eisenhower. It was expected the talks would deal mainly with the critical situation in Indochina.

Vice President Nixon and Under Secretary of State W. Bedell Smith were to address the governors and answer their questions in closed-door sessions.

Eisenhower hit on the briefing idea a year ago and the governors liked it so much they asked for a similar fill-in on the nation's problems this year.

A White House statement said Eisenhower arranged the meeting "to bring the heads of the state governments into closer working relationship with the national administration and to draw upon their background of experience and regional knowledge in shaping federal programs."

SOME OF THE governors held preliminary conferences on special problems. In one, 16 coal state governors considered the coal industry's present economic plight. The other brought together the governors of Texas, Kansas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Colorado on drought relief problems.

At the coal meeting, United Mine Workers President John L. Lewis said Russia could cripple this nation's oil facilities in a matter of days with submarines and bombers "if the Kremlin masters get impatient."

In that event, he said, if the coal industry wasn't ready to take over fuel needs, "all Russia would have to do is call on us to surrender."

Lewis and other speakers, including Gov. John S. Fine of Pennsylvania, said many of the coal industry's ills could be cured if the government would curb imports of residual oil, a refinery waste product used widely on the East Coast instead of coal.

Governors at the special drought conference urged quick congressional approval of an emergency $15 million grant for soil conservation measures to stop dust and wind damage in drought-stricken areas. They also recommended additional loans and other aid to guide farmers in proper land use.

C. Of C. Members Given Reminder

Members of Circleville Chamber of Commerce were urged Tuesday to hurry their reservations for the Chamber's annual banquet, scheduled next Friday night at the parish house of St. Philip's Episcopal Church.

Tickets have been sent to all members. Reservations for the dinner should be made at the Chamber's downtown offices, 110½ W. Main St., or by phoning 103.

Wayne C. Fletcher, industrial commissioner of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway, will be the main speaker at the dinner meeting. His address is expected to deal largely with the railroad's role in Circleville's ambitious expansion program.

Ohio Film Censor Is 'Not Worried'

COLUMBUS (AP)—Ohio film censor Clyde Hisson says he's not worried about the latest attack on the state's movie censorship.

"That's the Legislature's problem," Hisson said.

He referred to a suit brought by RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., of New York, the Independent Theater Owners of Ohio, and two theater operators.

The complainants say the censorship division has usurped the powers of the Legislature.

Yesterday Common Pleas Judge Ralph J. Bartlett refused to grant the film interests a temporary injunction blocking censorship by state officials.

Upturn Seen In Business

Economist Cautions Rally May Be Short

WASHINGTON (AP)—The eagerly awaited business upturn may have arrived, Dr. Courtney S. Brown of Columbia University said today, but it may prove to be only a temporary rally "in a longer period of slack activity."

Brown, dean of Columbia's Graduate School of Business, told the U. S. Chamber of Commerce convention there are encouraging signs that a revival "started a month or so ago."

Brown said some economists who formerly believed the business upturn would come this summer or fall now are "beginning to veer to earlier dates."

"Perhaps the turn around has already begun," he said, adding: "There is no convincing evidence that the incipient revival will be more than an improvement of several months' duration. It could turn out to be merely a period of stability at present levels."

"It may be more realistic to regard the present prospect of improvement as a period of rally in a longer period of slack activity. If we are wrong, so much the better."

"THE NATION'S economy may have passed temporarily from a postwar period of replenishment and expansion to a period that could last another year or two, during which replacement may provide the principal source of new demand."

"It would be nice to think that our worries are behind us, or that they will shortly be behind us, but that is perhaps premature. Unless there is a major change in international affairs or in domestic government policy, we may have to content ourselves with something less than a full-blown boom."

Brown voiced doubt that the government should undertake extraordinary action to stimulate industrial expansion and employment. To be really effective, he said, such measures might have to be so drastic as to be "incompatible with the political philosophy of the present administration."

Ohio Bell Union Shunning Delay

CLEVELAND (AP)—The CIO Communications Workers Union has rejected an Ohio Bell Telephone Co. proposal that contract negotiations over a paid health insurance plan be postponed.

The contract, which covers 17,000 employees, ran out yesterday, but provided for automatic extension during the talks, begun a month ago.

Ohio Bell, which already has a paid sick-leave plan, asked first for a two-month postponement of the sessions, and then for an indefinite postponement. Union representative Esther Woeste said the CWA could see nothing to gain by a postponement.

Cohn Denies He Knew Of 'Trick'

Picture Shows Army Secretary, Pvt. Schine In Friendly Pose

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army hurled a charge of using a "doctored" photograph at the McCarthy camp today, and Roy Cohn, counsel to Sen. McCarthy, acknowledged he had provided it, but denied knowing the picture had been altered.

The picture in question showed Secretary of the Army Robert T. Stevens with Pvt. G. David Schine, drafted former consultant to McCarthy's subcommittee in a friendly pose at an airport.

It was introduced in evidence yesterday during questioning of Stevens about his relations with Schine.

Stevens was sent from the witness chair and Cohn called to it.

Capitol Hill Highlights

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Knowland of California, the Senate's Republican leader, declares the free nations should committee in advance fighting men and materiel to oppose the next act of Communist aggression.

Apprehension of Red aggression, he tells the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, would be "only surrender on the installment plan."

MCCARTHY-ARMY—Roy Cohn, who has stood aside as regular counsel for the Senate investigations subcommittee, acknowledges he provided a photograph which Army officials charge was "doctored."

The picture, produced at the inquiry into the row between Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) and Secretary of Army Stevens, shows Stevens posing alone with G. David Schine, a central figure in the dispute. Stevens' attorney claims other persons were in the original negative.

Temporary Chairman Karl E. Mundt (R-SD) says, "There will be no surprise witnesses before this committee." He says if McCarthy produces any startling new evidence the subcommittee staff will go over it first.

AGRICULTURE—The Senate debates a bill to aid domestic food producers and presses toward a showdown vote on an amendment that would extend for two years the present high, rigid price supports on six basic commodities. Senate Republican leaders predict defeat for the amendment, which could cripple the administration's plan for flexible price props.

The Pony League—the intermediate circuit of the baseball program—will include boys 13 and 14 years old. Ted Mogan and Lee Smith, two of the managers signed up for the Pony League, will be in charge of the workouts Wednesday evening.

Tryouts for the Little Leaguers, youngest circuit organized so far, will be held next Saturday.

Delta Airline Seeks Expansion

WASHINGTON (AP)—Delta Airlines, Atlanta, yesterday asked the Civil Aeronautics Board for additional routes in the middle west and southwest.

Delta asked for authority to operate between Detroit and southern points by way of Cleveland, Columbus, Dayton, Cincinnati, Louisville, Evansville, Nashville and Memphis.

today after Army Counsel Joseph N. Welch charged it was a "shamefully" altered photograph, cut to give the impression that Stevens and Schine were photographed alone, when in truth it was a group picture.

Ray H. Jenkins, special subcommittee counsel, said Cohn had provided the picture and called Cohn to answer questions about the alleged "doctored."

COHN SAID the picture was sent to him by Schine, that it was "blown up" and delivered to Jenkins. He insisted he had no knowledge of it being cropped.

Cohn testified Stevens invited him, McCarthy and Schine in Stevens' office last Nov. 8, but that Schine, then in the Army, couldn't go.

He said Stevens at that time expressed regret, saying a couple of photographers had made requests for a picture of Stevens and Schine.

The original picture included Stevens, Schine, an Army colonel identified only as Bradley, and part of another civilian at McGuire Air Force Base, N. J.

Cohn acknowledged he gave Jenkins the photograph at a meeting the latter part of last week. He also confirmed, under questioning by Jenkins, that he did not mention that the photograph had been altered.

The two photographs appeared to be the same with the exception that in the picture offered yesterday other members of the group were removed, leaving only Schine and the secretary.

There was no word to him, Jenkins said, that it had been "cut or altered." He added he had presented it in "good faith."

Welch said Jenkins had been "imposed upon."

WELCH ANNOUNCED "the official photographer" who took the picture for the Army at McGuire Air Force Base is being called to Washington to tell which of the two pictures is "the original."

That set off an uproar. Welch told Jenkins: "I know you wouldn't want to participate in a trick like this."

Jenkins said the picture had been given to him by one of the parties in the case "adverse to Stevens" as being "the genuine," authoritative picture with no intimation that it had been altered.

Then Welch gave Jenkins what he said was an unaltered picture which showed Stevens, Schine and others, rather than Stevens and Schine alone.

McCarthy, examining both pictures, declared Welch had made a "completely false" statement.

THE INCIDENT stirred a furore with McCarthy demanding to continue on what he called a "point of order." Jenkins tried to silence McCarthy, saying he was making a speech and not a point of order. So did Mundt.

Mundt accepted the new picture submitted by Welch and said he thought Welch's point of order was "appropriate."

Jenkins, however, said he thought both McCarthy and Welch were making statements rather than points of order, and they should be sworn in to testify about the facts some time later.

He tried to end the tempest by suggesting that the subcommittee (Continued on Page Two)

Nation's Governors Slated For Briefing On U.S. Affairs

WASHINGTON (P)—Top administration leaders today began secret briefing of the nation's state and territorial governors on major foreign and domestic problems.

Foreign affairs was first up for discussion at the two-day meeting called by President Eisenhower. It was expected the talks would deal mainly with the critical situation in Indochina.

Vice President Nixon and Under Secretary of State W. Bedell Smith were to address the governors and answer their questions in closed-door sessions.

Eisenhower hit on the briefing idea a year ago and the governors liked it so much they asked for a similar fill-in on the nation's problems this year.

A White House statement said Eisenhower arranged the meeting "to bring the heads of the state governments into closer working relationship with the national administration and to draw upon their background of experience and regional knowledge in shaping federal programs."

SOME OF THE governors held preliminary conferences on special problems. In one, 16 coal state governors considered the coal industry's present economic plight. The other brought together the governors of Texas, Kansas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Colorado on drought relief problems.

At the coal meeting, United Mine Workers President John L. Lewis said Russia could cripple this nation's oil facilities in a matter of days with submarines and bombers "if the Kremlin masters get impatient."

In that event, he said, if the coal industry wasn't ready to take over fuel needs, "all Russia would have to do is call on us to surrender."

Lewis and other speakers, including Gov. John S. Fine of Pennsylvania, said many of the coal industry's ills could be cured if the government would curb imports of residual oil, a refinery waste product used widely on the East Coast instead of coal.

Governors at the special drought conference urged quick congressional approval of an emergency $15 million grant for soil conservation measures to stop dust and wind damage in drought-stricken areas. They also recommended additional loans and other aid to guide farmers in proper land use.

Members of Circleville Chamber of Commerce were urged Tuesday to hurry their reservations to the Chamber's annual banquet, scheduled next Friday night at the parish house of St. Philip's Episcopal Church.

Tickets have been sent to all members. Reservations for the dinner should be made at the Chamber's downtown offices, 110½ W. Main St., or by phoning 103.

Wayne C. Fletcher, industrial commissioner of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway, will be the main speaker at the dinner meeting. His address is expected to deal largely with the railroad's role in Circleville's ambitious expansion program.

Yesterday's mail brought a check from Miami University bought from the United States government some muffin pans, meat cleavers and other kitchen equipment.

The War Assets Administration billed the Oxford, Ohio, school for $149.53. Miami neglected to pay, though the United States kept turning the institution.

Yesterday's mail brought a check from Miami comptroller Lloyd Goggin. Besides the $149.53 invoice, the school paid $61.22 in interest and $20 in court costs. There was no explanation why it took the school seven years to pay for the items.

And Down It Came! But Not For Long

Farmers and town dwellers alike looked with keen satisfaction on the Tuesday morning downpour here.

And welcome it was, but nobody can say the city didn't get it in one soggy bundle. Within approximately 15 minutes, the downpour amounted to .26 inch of rain for the Circleville area.

Upturn Seen In Business

Economist Cautions Rally May Be Short

WASHINGTON (P)—The eagerly awaited business upturn may have arrived, Dr. Courtney S. Brown of Columbia University said today, but it may prove to be only a temporary rally "in a longer period of slack activity."

Brown, dean of Columbia's Graduate School of Business, told the U. S. Chamber of Commerce convention there are encouraging signs that a revival "started a month or so ago."

Brown said some economists who formerly believed the business upturn would come this summer or fall now are "beginning to veer to earlier dates."

"Perhaps the turn around has already begun," he said, adding: "There is no convincing evidence that the incipient revival will be more than an improvement of several months' duration. It could turn out to be merely a period of stability at present levels."

"It may be more realistic to regard the present prospect of improvement as a period of rally in a longer period of slack activity. If we are wrong, so much the better."

"THE NATION'S economy may have passed temporarily from a postwar period of replenishment and expansion to a period that could last another year or two, during which replacement may provide the principal source of new demand."

"It would be nice to think that our worries are behind us, or that they will shortly be behind us, but that is perhaps premature. Unless there is a major change in international affairs or in domestic government policy, we may have to content ourselves with something less than a full-blown boom."

Brown voiced doubt that the government should undertake extraordinary action to stimulate industrial expansion and employment. To be really effective, he said, such measures might have to be as drastic as to be "incompatible with the political philosophy of the present administration."

Ohio Bell Union Shunning Delay

CLEVELAND (P)—The CIO Communications Workers Union has rejected an Ohio Bell Telephone Co. proposal that contract negotiations over a paid health insurance plan be postponed.

The contract, which covers 17,000 employees, ran out yesterday, but provided for automatic extension during the talks, begun a month ago.

Ohio Bell, which already has a paid sick-leave plan, asked first for a two-month postponement of the sessions, and then for an indefinite postponement. Union representative Esther Woeste said the CWA could see nothing to gain by a postponement.

Cohn Denies He Knew Of 'Trick'

Picture Shows Army Secretary, Pvt. Schine In Friendly Pose

WASHINGTON (P)—The Army hurled a charge of using a "doctored" photograph at the McCarthy camp today, and Roy Cohn, counsel to Sen. McCarthy, acknowledged he had provided it, but denied knowing the picture had been altered.

The picture in question showed Secretary of the Army Robert T. Stevens with Pvt. G. David Schine, drafted former consultant to McCarthy's subcommittee in a friendly pose at an airport.

It was introduced in evidence yesterday during questioning of Stevens about his relations with Schine.

Stevens was sent from the witness chair and Cohn called to it.

Capitol Hill Highlights

WASHINGTON (P)—Sen. Knowland of California, the Senate's Republican leader, declares the free nations should committee in advance fighting men and material to oppose the next act of Communist aggression.

Apprehension of Red aggression, he tells the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, would be "only surrender on the installment plan."

MCCARTHY-ARMY — Roy Cohn, who has stood aside as regular counsel for the Senate investigations subcommittee, acknowledges he provided a photograph which Army officials charge was "doctored."

The picture, produced at the inquiry into the row between Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) and Secretary of Army Stevens, shows Stevens posing alone with G. David Schine, a central figure in the dispute. Stevens' attorney claims other persons were in the original negative.

Temporary Chairman Karl E. Mundt (R-SD) says, "There will be no surprise witnesses before this committee." He says if McCarthy produces any startling new evidence the subcommittee staff will go over it first.

AGRICULTURE—The Senate debates a bill to aid domestic wool producers and presses toward a showdown vote on an amendment that would extend for two years the present high, rigid price supports on six basic commodities. Senate Republican leaders predict defeat for the amendment, which could cripple the administration's plan for flexible price props.

The Pony League — the intermediate circuit of the baseball program — will include boys 13 and 14 years old. Ted Mogan and Lee Smith, two of the managers signed up for the Pony League, will be in charge of the workouts Wednesday evening.

Tryouts for the Little Leaguers, youngest circuit organized so far, will be held next Saturday.

Delta Airline Seeks Expansion

WASHINGTON (P)—Delta Airlines, Atlanta, yesterday asked the Civil Aeronautics Board for additional routes in the middle west and southwest.

Delta asked for authority to operate between Detroit and southern points by way of Cleveland, Columbus, Dayton, Cincinnati, Louisville, Evansville, Nashville and Memphis.

today after Army Counsel Joseph N. Welch charged it was a "shamefully" altered photograph, cut to give the impression that Stevens and Schine were photographed alone, when in truth it was a group picture.

Ray H. Jenkins, special subcommittee counsel, said Cohn had provided the picture and called Cohn to answer questions about the alleged "doctored."

COHN SAID the picture was sent to him by Schine, that it was "blown up" and delivered to Jenkins. He insisted he had no knowledge of it being cropped.

Cohn testified Stevens invited him, McCarthy and Schine in Stevens' office last Nov. 8, but that Schine, then in the Army, couldn't go.

He said Stevens at that time expressed regret, saying a couple of photographers had made requests for a picture of Stevens and Schine.

The original picture included Stevens, Schine, an Army colonel identified only as Bradley, and part of another civilian at McGuire Air Force Base, N. J.

Cohn acknowledged he gave Jenkins the photograph at a meeting the latter part of last week. He also confirmed, under questioning by Jenkins, that he did not mention that the photograph had been altered.

The two photographs appeared to be the same with the exception that in the picture offered yesterday other members of the group were removed, leaving only Schine and the secretary.

There was no word to him, Jenkins said, that it had been "cut or altered." He added he had presented it in "good faith."

Welch said Jenkins had been "imposed upon."

WELCH ANNOUNCED "the official photographer" who took the picture for the Army at McGuire Air Force Base is being called to Washington to tell which of the two pictures is "the original."

That set off an uproar. Welch told Jenkins: "I know you wouldn't want to participate in a trick like this."

Jenkins said the picture had been given to him by one of the parties in the case "adverse to Stevens" as being "the genuine," authoritative picture with no intimation that it had been altered.

Then Welch gave Jenkins what he said was an unaltered picture which showed Stevens, Schine and others, rather than Stevens and Schine alone.

McCarthy, examining both pictures, declared Welch had made a "completely false" statement.

THE INCIDENT stirred a furore with McCarthy demanding to continue on what he called a "point of order." Jenkins tried to silence McCarthy, saying he was making a speech and not a point of order. So did Mundt.

Mundt accepted the new picture submitted by Welch and said he thought Welch's point of order was "appropriate."

Jenkins, however, said he thought both McCarthy and Welch were making statements rather than points of order, and they should be sworn in to testify about the facts some time later.

He tried to end the tempest by suggesting that the subcommittee (Continued on Page Two)

Fugitive Ohioan Facing Hearing

TOLEDO (P)—A fugitive from a Texas prison for 18 years, Columbus H. Bennett must appear May 6 before Gov. Frank J. Lausche at an extradition hearing.

Bennett has been identified by police as Christopher Columbus Howard Hair, who was serving a life term as a habitual criminal before his 1936 escape from the Huntsville, Tex., penitentiary.

A house painter in Toledo since his escape, Bennett came to the attention of authorities after his 14-year-old son was accused of attempting to steal a toy fire engine.

proceed with the cross examination of Stevens.
Above the voices of Jenkins and Mundt, McCarthy demands that "when I start to say something I'm not to be interrupted."
McCarthy further demanded Welch produce the photographer who took the picture and show where it was altered.
Jenkins cut off McCarthy, saying he was not making a proper point of order, but was making a statement of fact.

WITH MCCARTHY promising yesterday to produce "information of tremendous importance" to the investigating subcommittee from at least one witness he refused to name or comment upon in advance, Mundt said:

"There will be no surprise witnesses before this committee."
He added that if McCarthy comes forward with any startling new evidence, the subcommittee's staff will have to go over it first.
McCarthy's friends said the proposed new material would not bear directly on Stevens.

Sen. Potter (R-Mich) took over the questioning and the hearing shifted back to the role played by Francis P. Carr, staff director of McCarthy's investigating subcommittee, in a meeting on Oct. 2, 1935. Carr accompanied Cohn to the meeting with Stevens.
Stevens said yesterday Cohn did most of the talking at this meeting in Schine's behalf and that Carr participated in only a minor way. He added today:

"I have searched my memory and my conscience and have talked to Mr. Adams (Army Counselor John G. Adams), who is to be a witness here.
"If the only evidence concerned the happenings of Oct. 2, 1935, then if I were serving as judges as you are, I would acquit him."
"But there is more evidence to come and his fate must await the end of the case. Mr. Carr telephoned Mr. Adams many times about Mr. Schine. He relayed to Mr. Adams messages from Mr. Cohn . . ."

McCarthy complained it was entirely improper for Stevens to testify as to what Adams is going to say.
Jenkins commented there should be no verdict on Carr until all the proof is in.

Yesterday's session broke up shortly after an angry exchange between McCarthy and Sen. McClellan of Arkansas, senior Democrat on the subcommittee.
This came when McClellan said Stevens had authority to overrule his subordinates and give Schine an Army commission and thus grant McCarthy and Cohn "what they were seeking." Stevens said he had the authority but never would issue such a commission to anyone.

McCarthy broke in to say he thought McClellan had implied that McCarthy "could be bought off." Any such implication, he shouted, was "completely improper and unfair."

There was a ripple of applause from spectators as the Wisconsin senator declared:
"There is no evidence that this chairman (McCarthy) ever could have been bought off at any hearing and never will be bought off at any hearing."

McClellan snapped back: "The implication is there."
The Arkansas developed the "implication" after other "implications" were noted to the effect that Stevens had gone out of his way to assist McCarthy and his aides. Stevens denied he was trying to curry favor.

Rita Winner In Squabble Over Kiddies

NEW YORK (AP)—Rita Hayworth, aided by two ex-husbands in winning back custody of her two little girls, has settled down in a New York hotel suite with the children and her current husband.

The glamorous movie star is "a loving and devoted mother," declared the judge in announcing disposition of charges that the children had been neglected. He was quoting one former husband, actor Orson Welles.

The neglect case was worked out in a three-hour private conference yesterday with Children's Judge George W. Smyth in suburban White Plains. Present were representatives of the Westchester County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, which filed the original complaint.

Smyth, who had placed the children in protective custody of the court last Friday but left them in the care of their governess, returned them to their mother. The charges of neglect were dismissed but Miss Hayworth conceded there had been at least a technical basis for the charge.

The girls, Yasmin, 4, and Rebecca, 9, had been left in the care of the governess, Mrs. Dorothy Chambers, while Rita went to Florida for a two-week vacation with her fourth husband, crooner Dick Haymes.

Prince Aly Khan, father of Yasmin, sent his lawyer into the conference to help his former wife fight the neglect charges. The prince stayed behind at Rita's White Plains hotel to play with his little daughter.

Toledoans Walk In Bus Dispute

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—Some 435 members of the AFL Bus Drivers Union struck Toledo's Community Traction Co. today, leaving this city of 320,000 without public transportation.

Mayor Ollie Celusta and City Manager Arnold Finch immediately urged residents to form car pools.

In dispute was the company's refusal to abide by a wage increase award made April 9 by an arbitration board.

The company said the award was invalid because its representative on the three-man board had walked out before it was made.

The judge reversed a 15-day suspension of the permit of Kozy Korner at Powhatan Point, Belmont County. The liquor control board had ordered the suspension after two investigators played a pinball machine in the place.

Cohn Denies He Knew Of 'Trick'

proceed with the cross examination of Stevens.

Above the voices of Jenkins and Mundt, McCarthy demands that "when I start to say something I'm not to be interrupted."

McCarthy further demanded Welch produce the photographer who took the picture and show where it was altered.

Jenkins cut off McCarthy, saying he was not making a proper point of order, but was making a statement of fact.

WITH MCCARTHY promising yesterday to produce "information of tremendous importance" to the investigating subcommittee from at least one witness he refused to name or comment upon in advance, Mundt said:

"There will be no surprise witnesses before this committee." He added that if McCarthy comes forward with any startling new evidence, the subcommittee's staff will have to go over it first.

McCarthy's friends said the proposed new material would not bear directly on Stevens.

Sen. Potter (R-Mich) took over the questioning and the hearing shifted back to the role played by Francis P. Carr, staff director of McCarthy's investigating subcommittee, in a meeting on Oct. 2, 1953.

Carr accompanied Cohn to the meeting with Stevens.

Stevens said yesterday Cohn did most of the talking at this meeting in Cohn's behalf and that Carr participated in only a minor way. He added today:

"I have searched my memory and my conscience and have talked to Mr. Adams (Army Counselor John G. Adams), who is to be a witness here."

"If the only evidence concerned the happenings of Oct. 2, 1953, then I am serving as judges as you are, I would acquit him."

"But there is more evidence to come and his fate must await the end of the case. Mr. Carr telephoned Mr. Adams many times about Mr. Schine. He relayed to Mr. Adams messages from Mr. Cohn."

McCarthy complained it was entirely improper for Stevens to testify as to what Adams is going to say.

Jenkins commented there should be no verdict on Carr until all the proof is in.

Yesterday's session broke up shortly after an angry exchange between McCarthy and Sen. McClellan of Arkansas, senior Democrat on the subcommittee.

This came when McClellan said Stevens had authority to overrule his subordinates and give Schine an Army commission and thus grant McCarthy and Cohn "what they were seeking." Stevens said he had the authority but never would issue such a commission to anyone.

McCarthy broke in to say he thought McClellan had implied that McCarthy "could be bought off." Any such implication, he shouted, was "completely improper and unfair."

There was a ripple of applause from spectators as the Wisconsin senator declared:

"There is no evidence that this chairman (McCarthy) ever could have been bought off at any hearing and never will be bought off at any hearing."

McClellan snapped back: "The implication is there."

The Arkansas developed the "implication" was noted to the effect that Stevens had gone out of his way to assist McCarthy and his aides. Stevens denied he was trying to curry favor.

North Great Plains States' Economy OK

Business Is Down A Little, But Folks Don't Seem Worried

By SAM DAWSON

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—The northern Great Plains states see their economy sailing into the spring season on a pretty even keel—with some new oil fields for ballast but with iron mining dragging its anchor a little.

The business and industrial storms of the winter seem to be dying down. Manufacturing follows pretty closely the course set nationally. The farm and livestock outlook is perhaps more closely tied this year than usual to the twin forces of weather and government price support policies.

More men are out of work in the industrialized sections than last year. Pay checks have shrunk some with the ending of overtime. But economists for the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis say the number of unemployed workers in the northern Great Plains is a smaller percentage of the labor force than is the case in the nation as a whole.

And perhaps because of this, retail sales compare favorably with a year ago, although sales of appliances are down, and it's a little more work to collect on payments.

The Ninth Federal Reserve District which the bank serves includes the states of Montana, North and South Dakota, Minnesota, and the northern half of Wisconsin and the Upper Peninsula of Michigan. Most folk you talk to in the twin cities of St. Paul and Minneapolis say: "Sure, things aren't quite as booming as they were awhile back. But how could they go on being like that? Business is still pretty good."

Building plans are high in most parts of the district.

Wheat farmers report there is enough surface moisture now for the seed to germinate, but the subsoil moisture is poor. In other words, rain will have to keep coming along at just the right times this year if the spring wheat harvest is to be a good one—and the rust that hit the valuable durum wheat crop last year will, have to stay away this season if farm incomes aren't to suffer further.

A former Wittenberg student, Shupe for the past two years has served as construction superintendent for a Washington C.H. firm. He lives in Springfield.

He has been in construction and business management since he left Wittenberg College in 1925.

Shupe is a graduate of Amanda High School in Fairfield County.

Stork Has Few Secrets In Parma

CLEVELAND (AP)—The stork has few secrets along Newkirk avenue in suburban Parma Heights.

According to a custom on this suburban street, expectant parents burn a red bulb in their porch lights.

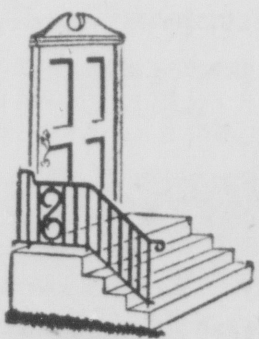

When the red bulb is replaced by a pink one the neighbors know the newcomer is a girl. A blue light means it's a boy.

Twins, a boy and a girl? Two light bulbs, natch.

HERE'S HOW . . .

MAKE A BED-SIDE TABLE

A handy bed-side stand or table provides a place for the lamp, books and magazines, and bed-side necessities.

The completed stand (A) is started by first constructing a base frame with legs (B).

The legs are made of 2 by 2-inch material, tapered to 1 1/2-inch square at the bottom. To the 8-inch legs a 1 by 3 collar is fastened, completing the 16 1/2 by 14 1/2-inch frame.

The floor of the cabinet, the shelf, the sides, the back and the top all are 16 1/2 inches wide. Their total length 108 inches. If the craftsman is going to edge-glide boards to produce a smooth exterior for the table, he may accomplish all his gluing at one time by producing a glued-up total length of 10 feet (or two 5-foot glue-ups). This will provide all the cuts and allow 12 inches for saw kerf and spoilage.

The floorboard is 16 1/2 by 16 1/2. It is fastened to the base by wood screws, (1 1/2-inch, No. 4 screws) countersunk so that the drawer will slide over them.

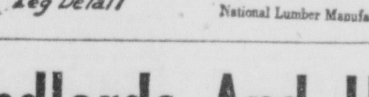

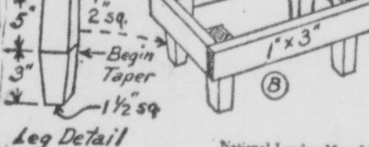

The back is also 16 1/2 by 16 1/2. It fits on the base and is fastened with wood screws, from below.

Then add the sides, 16 1/2 by 17 1/4 each. These are fastened to the edge of the back and to the floor board with finishing nails, with the heads sunk for filling.

The shelf, 15 1/2 by 16 1/2, is inserted next, allowing 5 inches beneath the shelf for the drawer. The shelf is held in place with long finishing nails (4 penny, 1 1/2-inch) again with the heads sunk.

The top, 24 by 16 1/2, allows for a 4-inch over-hang on each side. The top may be fastened with finishing nails or with L-brackets or fasteners.

The drawer (C) may be omitted to allow for a small shelf.

Landlords And High Food Costs Force Dogs To Flee Big Cities

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—The dog has been claiming for centuries he is man's best friend, an unlikely story if there ever was one.

But the dog long has been one of nature's most artful self-salesmen, and he has managed to convince millions of people that he is their top buddy.

This of course, is not too difficult a feat in a world where a lot of people also believe if you leave a horse hair in a closed jar of water for six weeks it will turn into a garter snake.

The current statistics on the canine population of New York City, however, bring a jarring note of fact into the legend of the dog's loyalty to man.

Since 1947 the number of legally licensed dogs here (nine out of ten obey the law in this respect) has fallen from 312,517 to 272,814. During the same period the human population has grown considerably, and SPCA officials estimate the cat population of the city is between 400,000 and 500,000.

What do these figures really mean? Has the dog rejected mankind at last and fled the city?

I think so. But apologists for the dog give other explanations. They say there are fewer dogs here because landlords no longer will allow them and because it costs so much to feed a dog. More and more people have decided that, while it's nice to have a pal, the friendship has become too expensive.

These arguments sound plausible at first glance. But they don't hold water. To begin with, is it fair to blame landlords for the scarcity of dogs as well as the lack of hot water? A landlord is a man, after all, and if the dog is a man's best friend, would the landlord turn his back on him?

Would anybody who ever was owned by a dog really discard him simply because of the high cost of living? What price friendship—the pleading eye, the wagging tail of love?

No. Nobody who has faith in the race of man could believe a being's loyalty to his dog does not at least equal his dog's loyalty to him. I prefer to believe dogs are leaving the city not because they have ceased to like mankind, but because their common sense tells them a modern city is no place for a dog.

The growing traffic jams, the crowding together, the incessant noise, the unhealthy fumes—all these characteristics of city life repel a dog.

Cats are tougher. The feline population of the city hasn't fallen for an obvious reason. Cats have a secret sense of humor, and they love to laugh at people. Cats get a real sense of enjoyment out of the predicaments city people get themselves into.

Repeatedly American officials have stated the importance of Indochina to the West, saying its fall would mean letting North and South Koreans vote, in free elections, for the government they want. The South Koreans, outnumbering the North Koreans 4-1, would win.

But South Korea is an American ally. If China agreed to this arrangement, it would be handing all Korea over to the Allied side.

2. Withdraw aid from the Vietnam, led by Communist Ho Chi Minh, who are fighting the French in Indochina. That would result eventually, or it should, in victory for the French.

The Red Chinese fought almost three years in North Korea to keep it out of the hands of the West and wound up, under the truce, occupying it.

It's unthinkable they would let North Korea slip into the Allied camp. The Communists, Chinese and Russian, have not in a single instance yielded a foot of ground they took since World War II.

So they're not likely to start now.

World Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—If anyone wants to know the state of the world midway in the 20th century, all he has to do is look at the foreign ministers' conference just getting under way in Geneva. Its a mess.

There is even less hope for peaceful solutions than there was when the Big Four foreign ministers met at Berlin in January. And there were no solutions at Berlin.

At Geneva the foreign ministers of 19 countries, including the United States' Secretary of State Dulles, are to talk about peace in Korea, where there's a truce, and peace in Indochina, where there's war and no truce.

If the truth were known, Dulles probably wishes he was somewhere else. He's in a bit of a box before the meeting starts.

Russia and Red China are there. It's possible they might make some concessions in return for giving Red China a seat in the United Nations and for American recognition of the Communists as the legitimate government of China.

But Dulles has pretty well shut the door on any deal along those lines by stating this country's opposition to recognition or a U. N. seat for the Red Chinese.

The United States wants Red China to do two things:

1. Let Korea be united. This would mean letting North and South Koreans vote, in free elections, for the government they want. The South Koreans, outnumbering the North Koreans 4-1, would win.

2. Withdraw aid from the Vietnam, led by Communist Ho Chi Minh, who are fighting the French in Indochina. That would result eventually, or it should, in victory for the French.

'Unknown Operators' Blasted For Abuse Of FHA Program

A local lumber and materials dealer charged Tuesday that "a small number of irresponsible individuals" tend to give a black eye to a section of the federal housing program that has helped home improvements in many ways.

The claim was made by Tom Gilliland, a member of the Public Affairs Committee of the National Retail Lumber Dealers Association. He predicted the current Congressional investigation of the Federal Housing Administration's Title I repair-and-modernization program will reveal it has benefited thousands of home owners in this section of the state.

It has helped them, he declared, to improve their properties at a reasonable cost with the aid of low-convenient monthly payments. "Unknown operators from out of town," he emphasized, are the ones to blame for irregularities uncovered by the probe in Washington.

"The FHA's self-supporting Title I program," Gilliland said, "serves the needs of home owners well, at no expense to the taxpayers, except where it has been abused by a small number of irresponsible individuals who have sought exorbitant profits and have made false and misleading promises."

"THE IRREGULARITIES which Congress is investigating have occurred principally in cases where home owners have signed contracts with unknown operators from out of town."

"As early as last September, our national association began to assist FHA officials in tightening up Title I regulations so that the abuses could be eliminated without preventing retail lumber dealers and legitimate contractors from helping their customers obtain the credit benefits offered by FHA-insured loans for property improvements."

"At the same time, in view of the need for making this wholly desirable program available to as many home-owners as is economically sound and feasible, our association has been actively supporting the pending Congressional legislation, which would increase from three to five years the period over which Title I loans could be repaid and increasing the maximum amount that can be borrowed from $2,500 to $3,000."

"It is highly encouraging to know that the new Commissioner of FHA, Norman Mason, is a retail lumber dealer of broad experience in this field, and a former president of the National Retail Lumber Dealers Association. "Commissioner Mason is intimately familiar with Title I and other FHA programs. He can be depended on to make them serve the best interests of the public and to eliminate practices which defraud those who seek the unquestioned advantages that FHA loan insurance offers."

"The association's Public Affairs Committee suggests that before signing any contract, the local lumber and building materials dealer should be contacted, as a check against exorbitant profits by unknown operators."

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—The northern Great Plains states see their economy sailing into the spring season on a pretty even keel—with some new oil fields for ballast but with iron mining dragging its anchor a little.

The business and industrial storms of the winter seem to be dying down. Manufacturing follows pretty closely the course set nationally. The farm and livestock outlook is perhaps more closely tied this year than usual to the twin forces of weather and government price support policies.

More men are out of work in the industrialized sections than last year. Pay checks have shrunk some with the ending of overtime.

But economists for the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis say the number of unemployed workers in the northern Great Plains is a smaller percentage of the labor force than is the case in the nation as a whole.

And perhaps because of this, retail sales compare favorably with a year ago, although sales of appliances are down, and it's a little more work to collect on payments.

The Ninth Federal Reserve District which the bank serves includes the states of Montana, North and South Dakota, Minnesota, and the northern half of Wisconsin and the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.

Most folk you talk to in the twin cities of St. Paul and Minneapolis say: "Sure, things aren't quite as booming as they were awhile back. But how could they go on being like that? business is still pretty good."

Building plans are high in most parts of the district.

Wheat farmers report there is enough surface moisture now for the seed to germinate, but the subsoil moisture is poor. In other words, rain will have to keep coming along at just the right times this year if the spring wheat harvest is to be a good one—and the rust that hit the valuable durum wheat crop last year will have to stay away this season if farm incomes aren't to suffer further.

Stork Has Few Secrets In Parma

CLEVELAND (AP)—The stork has few secrets along Newkirk avenue in suburban Parma Heights.

According to a custom on the suburban street, expectant parents turn a red bulb in their porch lights.

When the red bulb is replaced by a pink one the neighbors know the newcomer is a girl. A blue light means it's a boy.

Twins, a boy and a girl? Two light bulbs, natch.

HERE'S HOW...

MAKE A BED-SIDE TABLE

A handy bed-side stand or table provides a place for the lamp, books and magazines, and bed-side necessities.

The completed stand (A) is started by first constructing a base frame with legs (B).

The legs are made of 2 by 2-inch material, tapered to 1 1/2-inch square at the bottom. To the 8-inch legs a 1 by 3 collar is fastened, completing the 16 1/2 by 14 1/2-inch frame.

The floor of the cabinet, the shelf, the sides, the back and the top all are 16 1/2 inches wide. Their total length 108 inches. If the craftsman is going to edge-glue boards to produce a smooth exterior for the table, he may accomplish all his gluing at one time by producing a glued-up total length of 10 feet (or two 5-foot glue-ups). This will provide all the cuts and allow 12 inches for saw kerf and spoilage.

The floorboard is 16 1/2 by 16 1/2. It is fastened to the base by wood screws, (1 1/2-inch, No. 4 screws) countersunk so that the drawer will slide over them.

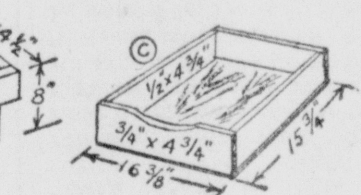

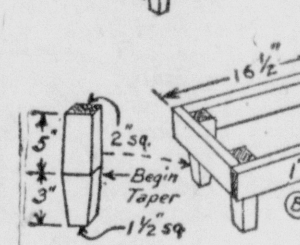

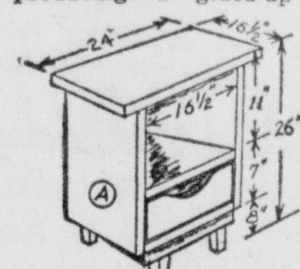

The back is also 16 1/2 by 16 1/2. It fits on the base and is fastened with wood screws, from below.

Then add the sides, 16 1/2 by 17 1/4 each. These are fastened to the edge of the back and to the floor board with finishing nails (4 penny, 1 1/2-inch) again with the heads sunk.

The shelf, 15 1/2 by 16 1/2, is inserted next, allowing 5 inches beneath the shelf for the drawer. The shelf is held in place with long finishing nails (4 penny, 1 1/2-inch) again with the heads sunk.

The top, 24 by 16 1/2, allows for a 4-inch over-hang on each side. The top may be fastened with finishing nails or with L-brackets or fasteners.

The drawer (C) may be omitted to allow for a small shelf.

WASHINGTON (AP)—If anyone wants to know the state of the world midway in the 20th century, all he has to do is look at the foreign ministers' conference just getting under way in Geneva. Its a mess.

There is even less hope for peaceful solutions than there was when the Big Four foreign ministers met at Berlin in January. And there were no solutions at Berlin.

At Geneva the foreign ministers of 19 countries, including the United States' Secretary of State Dulles, are to talk about peace in Korea, where there's a truce, and peace in Indochina, where there's war and no truce.

If the truth were known, Dulles probably wishes he was somewhere else. He's in a bit of a box before the meeting starts.

Russia and Red China are there. It's possible they might make some concessions in return for giving Red China a seat in the United Nations and for American recognition of the Communists as the legitimate government of China.

But Dulles has pretty well shut the door on any deal along those lines by stating this country's opposition to recognition or a U. N. seat for the Red Chinese.

The United States wants Red China to do two things:

1. Let Korea be united. This would mean letting North and South Koreans vote, in free elections, for the government they want. The South Koreans, outnumbering the North Koreans 4-1, would win.

2. Withdraw aid from the Vietminh, led by Communist Ho Chi Minh, who are fighting the French in Indochina. That would result eventually, or it should, in victory for the French.

The Red Chinese fought almost three years in North Korea to keep it out of the hands of the West and wound up, under the truce, occupying it.

It's unthinkable they would let North Korea slip into the Allied camp. The Communists, Chinese and Russian, have not in a single instance yielded a foot of ground they took since World War II.

So they're not likely to start now. Repeatedly American officials have stated the importance of Indochina to the West, saying its fall

'Unknown Operators' Blasted For Abuse Of FHA Program

A local lumber and materials dealer charged Tuesday that "a small number of irresponsible individuals" tend to give a black eye to a section of the federal housing program that has helped home improvements in many ways.

The claim was made by Tom Gilliland, a member of the Public Affairs Committee of the National Retail Lumber Dealers Association. He predicted the current Congressional investigation of the Federal Housing Administration's Title I repair-and-modernization program will reveal it has benefitted thousands would open all Southeast Asia to communism.

By the same token, the Communists know the importance of Indochina to them. It's a little dreamy to think they'd do anything that would result in destroying Ho Chi Minh or losing an inch of ground he took.

Dulles can hardly have any hope that American desires for Korea and Indochina will be fulfilled at Geneva. His more immediate, critical problem would seem to be in keeping the American ally, France, from weakening.

The French are getting desperate in their losing fight with the Vietminh. Over the weekend they reportedly called for American and British help, greater and more direct, than any given them so far.

This hardly gave Dulles and the British a psychological advantage, coming as it did on the eve of the conference.

If the Communists at Geneva offer the French any kind of attractive truce, how can Dulles keep the French from accepting unless he promises American intervention to bail them out?

of home owners in this section of the state.

It has helped them, he declared, to improve their properties at a reasonable cost with the aid of low-convenient monthly payments.

"Unknown operators from out of town," he emphasized, are the ones to blame for irregularities uncovered by the probe in Washington.

"The FHA's self-supporting Title I program," Gilliland said, "serves the needs of home owners well, at no expense to the taxpayers, except where it has been abused by a small number of irresponsible individuals who have sought exorbitant profits and have made false and misleading promises."

"THE IRREGULARITIES which Congress is investigating have occurred principally in cases where home owners have signed contracts with unknown operators from out of town."

"As early as last September, our national association began to assist FHA officials in tightening up Title I regulations so that the abuses could be eliminated without preventing retail lumber dealers and legitimate contractors from helping their customers obtain the credit benefits offered by FHA-insured loans for property improvements."

"At the same time, in view of the need for making this wholly desirable program available to as many home-owners as is economically sound and feasible, our association has been actively supporting the pending Congressional legislation, which would increase from three to five years the period over which Title I loans could be repaid and increasing the maximum amount that can be borrowed from $2,500 to $3,000."

"It is highly encouraging to know that the new Commissioner of FHA, Norman Mason, is a retail lumber dealer of broad experience in this field, and a former president of the National Retail Lumber Dealers Association. "Commissioner Mason is intimately familiar with Title I and other FHA programs. He can be depended on to make them serve the best interests of the public and to eliminate practices which defraud those who seek the unquestioned advantages that FHA loan insurance offers."

"The association's Public Affairs Committee suggests that before signing any contract, the local lumber and building materials dealer should be contacted, as a check against exorbitant profits by unknown operators."

Noted Engineer Dies In Chillicothe

CHILLICOTHE (AP)—Retired railroad engineer Robert Polen, 70, died yesterday in his home apparently of a heart attack. To other B&O railroaders and to the community he was known as the "engineer of presidential specials."

He piloted special presidential trains that carried Herbert Hoover, Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman.

Polen's last regular runs before retirement was on the National Limited between St. Louis, Washington and New York City.

Armco Earnings Show Upturn

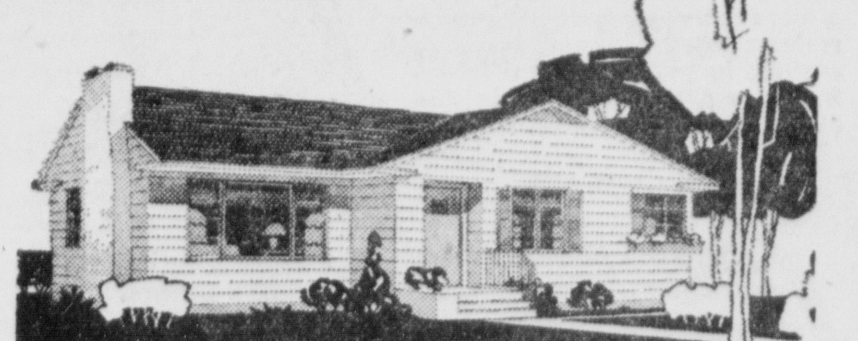

MIDDLETOWN (AP)—Earnings of Armco Steel Corp. for the first quarter of 1954 were $1,370,000 higher than for the same period of 1953, Charles R. Hook, Armco Board chairman, announces.

Hook said the company earned $9,137,226 in the first three months of 1954 after all charges and taxes. This equaled $1.75 per share on the 5,213,667 shares of Armco common stock now outstanding. In comparison, during the corresponding quarter of 1953, Armco earned $7,767,045, equal to $1.49 a share.

A GOLDEN AGE?

BASICALLY cheering words from behind the iron curtain come from the pen of William R. Matthews, editor of the Arizona Star at Tucson, who has just returned from a 10-day visit to the Soviet Union and satellites with other U. S. editors.

The heart of the Matthews optimism is this: "I believe it is safe to say that there will not be war because no Soviet, Polish or Czech government dares to take its people into war. The Moscow government took up the peace theme because it was the dearest thing in the minds of the Russian people. It is a deep-rooted theme that grows out of the life and hopes of the people after their long suffering in war."

The American people feel, as the Russian people are described as feeling, that war has become too savage, too all-embracing in its destruction, to warrant its consideration by sane minds as an instrument of national policy.

But statesmen function traditionally. Some of them may reach for war if they think they can get away with it. The most effective veto against them, even in a despotism, is overwhelming popular sentiment.

In longing for peace the Russian and satellite peoples are reported to subscribe to the sentiment of the people of the United States. If they could make their voices heard, this could be the beginning of the end of world despotism, the inception of a golden age in which national leaders, denied resort to war by lack of popular support, gravitated more and more into the orbit of the popular will.

Is it conceivable that the Russian people could swing this? There is no evidence of it on the surface, despite what Mr. Matthews says.

EASIER CREDIT

BY EASING THE Federal Reserve discount rate the government has flipped the switch on its credit control machinery. The purpose, of course, is to encourage commercial banks to make more advantageous loans to business, and thus to counter a recent trend of inventory liquidations accompanied by repayment of outstanding bank loans and diminished borrowing.

It is hoped by Washington officials that easier money will encourage businessmen to pile up larger stocks, thus filling up the pipeline with orders to the manufacturing level.

Easing of credit restrictions is never as potent in reviving business or inflation as application of harder money policies is in checking inflation. But it is also a truism that depressions are never heralded by cheap money.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., the American Ambassador to the United Nations, has made it clear beyond doubt that there are no monkeyshines about the American policy concerning Red China. At the Associated Press luncheon in New York, he indicted Red China of crimes and misdemeanors, succinctly and powerfully stated: "Because it has repeatedly expressed open contempt for the purposes and principles of the United Nations, and the judgments of the international community."

"Because it stands convicted by the United Nations as an aggressor in Korea, where it killed and wounded many thousands of American and other soldiers who were defending peace."

"Because it continues to support aggression in Indochina, by giving substantial aid and by furnishing advisers and technicians to the Vietminh forces."

"Because it occupied defenseless Tibet and seized control of its Government and resources."

"Because it sponsors guerrilla and subversive movements in Malaya and throughout the rest of Southeast Asia."

"Because it committed dreadful atrocities against Americans and others fighting for the United Nations in Korea and subjected prisoners to physical and mental cruelty in seeking to extort military secrets and confessions of alleged guilt."

"Because it still holds thirty-two American civilians under barbarous conditions without published charges and subjects these innocent missionaries, journalists and business men to cruel and inhuman treatment."

"Because it willfully fabricated and publicized false evidence of spurious germ warfare charges designed to blacken the reputation of the United States and otherwise carries on a deliberate 'Hate America' propaganda campaign."

"Because it has executed millions of its captive subjects, and forced other millions into slave labor."

"Because it even stoops to an international extortion racket in squeezing millions of dollars from overseas Chinese who try to buy safety and protection for their relatives at home."

This bill of particulars, the most complete I have ever seen, is tantamount to announcing to the world that the United States will employ its veto in the Security Council if an attempt is made to smuggle Red China into the United Nations.

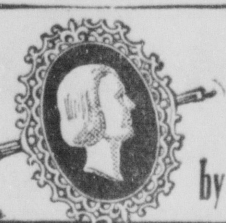

Were Red China admitted to the United Nations, public opinion in this country would beyond doubt demand that the United States withdraw from it. In many respects that would, at this stage of international relations, be a tragedy because, as Lodge pointed out, the alternative to talk is often war, and at this stage needs to be averted.

If the United Nations performs no other historic service than to delay World War III, that will be a task accomplished. We have been on the verge of World War III since 1945, but it has not happened.

Government red tape is reported to be responsible for a food shortage in Russia, but it should not be surprising that red tape is prevalent in Red Russia.

During World War II the country was a full of prophets who predicted when it would end. But the cold war seems to have the prognosticators stymied.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE
MRS. SERENA ADAMS dumped the basin of suds in the sink, removed a little mirror from a chair where it had been propped erect and polished its surface with her elbow before she hung it again on the kitchen wall.

"Now," she said, "you look like somebody."

In his wheel chair Mike Adams grunted, rubbing his hand over his shaved cheeks. "Dang near peeled me! You let me do it myself and my skin wouldn't burn for a week."

"Your hands shake and you let your beard grow too long. After this I'm going to shave you every day. Now you sit still till I fetch you a clean shirt. She's not going to see you looking like a tramp."

"Sit still, she says! You ask me, she's lucky she can see me at all," he retorted, "acting the fool like she did."

"Listen now—" the old lady's voice rose—"you're not going to throw it up to her, not one time. You let me hear you even cheep it and you can sit in that chair till you rot and I wouldn't even fetch you a drink of water."

"You'd do it, too," he growled. "How you ever going to know why she did it if you don't ask her?"

"We ain't going to know because she don't know herself."

"She wrote it down, didn't she? It was in the paper."

"How do we know she wrote it? There was plenty around that place that was jealous of Farrie. They thought Albright favored her and likely he did. But she earned it, all these years, taking a lot of him, looking after those young ones of his, doing things a wife would have done for him if he'd had one. Anybody could have written that piece on the typewriter. It didn't have any name signed to it."

He wriggled in the chair as she jerked the shirt around him. "You got my arm twisted. Lemme do it myself."

"I don't reckon there's any use trying to get a necktie on you," she signed.

"What for? What you want to do me all up for? I ain't going any place."

"That nurse is coming with her. I wish he wasn't sending a nurse along. I can do for her just as good as anybody and it's just one more for me to wait on."

"You mean that one that was here? Young feller. Had that girl with him?"

"Marshall, his name is. The girl was one of the Tabers from down Harpeth way. Old Mort Ravel's daughter married a Taber. You remember Mort?"

"Yeah, I recall him. He had this same thing I've got. Used to see a chauffeur hit him out of his car every time he came down to the courthouse."

Serena was all primed and Copyright, 1951, by Helen Topping Miller. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

ready long before the ambulance backed up to the door.

A little crowd gathered as the white-coated men helped the nurse down and set several suitcases on the sidewalk. Then the stretcher came out slowly and solemnly.

Like a coffin, thought the old lady, gulping down a lump in her throat. Farrell reached a hand to her grandmother but the nurse intervened quickly, tucked it back under the blanket.

By evening of the next day Serena was satisfied that the nurse, whose name was Miss Murphy, had accepted her valuable version of Farrell's misadventure, as retailed elaborately in the kitchen. Not that Miss Murphy made any comment, except to say, "Is that so?"

Indifferently but Serena was confident she had made some impression. While the nurse was out on her afternoon airing, the old lady decided that it was time to post Farrell on what was supposed to have happened. Not that she expected any praise for having been clever enough to think up a story, but because she was naively certain that Farrell would welcome this new version of what could only be considered a foolish and sordid affair.

"Now don't you cheep," she warned when she had told it all in detail. "You thought it was mouthwash and you haven't got any idea how that piece got written in your typewriter. You haven't told them any different over at the hospital have you?"

"I didn't tell them anything. I couldn't talk at first, and when I could make sounds they wouldn't let me. But I'm not going to agree to anything like that, grandma, even to save your pride. I did take the stuff. I knew what it was and I wrote the note. I was a fool."

"I know now, but I won't act a lie. When I did it, I wanted to die. Then I saw how selfish I was. Everything just got too much for me, all at once."

"Then you changed your mind—but who needs to know that? You just keep quiet and she'll carry that story back to the hospital. He'll hear it sooner or later. Maybe he'll even put it in the paper."

"No, grandma. You can't do it. Sewell would suspect some other girl in the office; he might even accuse someone of writing that note. If he ever hears this weird yarn you've made up, I'll have to tell him the truth. Probably he'll never hear it. The nurses don't gossip with patients."

"She don't look like a very friendly character, anyway," Serena dismissed Miss Murphy with a sniff.

"We'll let her go in a day or two. I'll be well enough to get up and do for myself by Sunday."

"Maybe he won't like it, us sending her off so quickly if he's paying her, but I can just as well fix what you eat and your bed."

"He isn't going to pay her. Nor the hospital. I'm going to pay him back every cent if it takes me the rest of my life," croaked Farrell grimly.

"It was his idea. You earned it, I'd say, 40 times over. He'll talk you out of that idea as soon as you get back to the office."

"I'm not going back to Sewell Albright's office."

"What do you mean? The doctor told me that excepting for your voice you'd be all right in a couple of weeks."

"I'm not going back to work for Sewell again. A hard, bright look came into Farrell's eyes. 'I couldn't! Why, I'd burn with mortification every minute. I'd be tormented, wondering what he was thinking! That I was a fool who had so little sense that I'd given myself away. Nothing embarrasses a man so much as the woman who throws herself at him—and I made it public.'"

There came a day when Farrell walked out to the living-room, a trifle pale, uncertain on her feet, and prone to clutch at the backs of chairs and smile at her own weakness. A day or two later there was a yell from Mike. "Big car stopping outside."

Serena snatched off her apron, ran to the front door and peered through the dusty curtains. "It's him. It's Albright. There's a Negro boy helping him down. Farrie, you go lie down quick. I'll get your blue silk bed jacket."

Farrell's face stiffened a little and her eyes took on a quickly controlled panic, but she shook her head. "No, I'll stay right here."

Sewell looked older, slumped, made round-shouldered by the crutches. He panted a little and wiped his face as the boy arranged the crutches beside his chair.

"Well, Rhody!" he said breathlessly. "Here we are, both of us on foot again. How are you, Mike? Looks as if I've joined your lodge. Think I'll get a wagon like that and make 'em shove me around."

"It ain't fun," protested Mike Adams. "Too many places I want to go and can't. You get anchored in one of these here kiddie-cars and they can just shove you off in a corner and forget you."

"My lands, Mr. Albright, we take care of Mike like he was an infant baby!"

"You take good care of Rhody here too," Sewell smiled at her. "I need her back again. I'm as helpless as a man with his right arm cut off, without Rhody. How's the old throat?"

She pressed her hands around her neck and shook her head, trying to smile thinly, trying to keep back tears, while the spasmodic pain tore at her. No words would come, not even the rasping whisper.

The head of one of the biggest Hollywood studios had a most effective gambit for heading off demands for increased salaries. This head, whom we shall call L. B. because those were his initials, had an uncanny knack for knowing when a visitor was about to put the bite on him. He would rub his eyes wearily and say, "Why do I drive myself this way? I make more out of the office buildings I own than I do slaving at this studio. I stay here, I guess, because I couldn't live without my contacts."

"I'm not going back to work for Sewell again. A hard, bright look came into Farrell's eyes. 'I couldn't! Why, I'd burn with mortification every minute. I'd be tormented, wondering what he was thinking! That I was a fool who had so little sense that I'd given myself away. Nothing embarrasses a man so much as the woman who throws herself at him—and I made it public.'"

There came a day when Farrell walked out to the living-room, a trifle pale, uncertain on her feet, and prone to clutch at the backs of chairs and smile at her own weakness. A day or two later there was a yell from Mike. "Big car stopping outside."

Serena snatched off her apron, ran to the front door and peered through the dusty curtains. "It's him. It's Albright. There's a Negro boy helping him down. Farrie, you go lie down quick. I'll get your blue silk bed jacket."

Farrell's face stiffened a little and her eyes took on a quickly controlled panic, but she shook her head. "No, I'll stay right here."

Sewell looked older, slumped, made round-shouldered by the crutches. He panted a little and wiped his face as the boy arranged the crutches beside his chair.

"Well, Rhody!" he said breathlessly. "Here we are, both of us on foot again. How are you, Mike? Looks as if I've joined your lodge. Think I'll get a wagon like that and make 'em shove me around."

"It ain't fun," protested Mike Adams. "Too many places I want to go and can't. You get anchored in one of these here kiddie-cars and they can just shove you off in a corner and forget you."

"My lands, Mr. Albright, we take care of Mike like he was an infant baby!"

"You take good care of Rhody here too," Sewell smiled at her. "I need her back again. I'm as helpless as a man with his right arm cut off, without Rhody. How's the old throat?"

She pressed her hands around her neck and shook her head, trying to smile thinly, trying to keep back tears, while the spasmodic pain tore at her. No words would come, not even the rasping whisper.

A GOLDEN AGE?

BASICALLY cheering words from behind the iron curtain come from the pen of William R. Matthews, editor of the Arizona Star at Tucson, who has just returned from a 10-day visit to the Soviet Union and satellites with other U. S. editors.

The heart of the Matthews optimism is this: "I believe it is safe to say that there will not be war because no Soviet, Polish or Czech government dares to take its people into war. The Moscow government took up the peace theme because it was the dearest thing in the minds of the Russian people. It is a deep-rooted theme that grows out of the life and hopes of the people after their long suffering in war."

The American people feel, as the Russian people are described as feeling, that war has become too savage, too all-embracing in its destruction, to warrant its consideration by sane minds as an instrument of national policy.

But statesmen function traditionally. Some of them may reach for war if they think they can get away with it. The most effective veto against them, even in a despotism, is overwhelming popular sentiment.

In longing for peace the Russian and satellite peoples are reported to subscribe to the sentiment of the people of the United States. If they could make their voices heard, this could be the beginning of the end of world despotism, the inception of a golden age in which national leaders, denied resort to war by lack of popular support, gravitated more and more into the orbit of the popular will.

Is it conceivable that the Russian people could swing this? There is no evidence of it on the surface, despite what Mr. Matthews says.

EASIER CREDIT

BY EASING The Federal Reserve discount rate the government has flipped the switch on its credit control machinery. The purpose, of course, is to encourage commercial banks to make more advantageous loans to business, and thus to counter a recent trend of inventory liquidations accompanied by repayment of outstanding bank loans and diminished borrowing.

It is hoped by Washington officials that easier money will encourage businessmen to pile up larger stocks, thus filling up the pipeline with orders to the manufacturing level.

Easing of credit restrictions is never as potent in reviving business or inflation as application of harder money policies is in checking inflation. But it is also a truism that depressions are never heralded by cheap money.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., the American Ambassador to the United Nations, has made it clear beyond doubt that there are no monkeyshines about the American policy concerning Red China. At the Associated Press luncheon in New York, he indicted Red China of crimes and misdemeanors, succinctly and powerfully stated: "Because it has repeatedly expressed open contempt for the purposes and principles of the United Nations, and the judgments of the international community."

"Because it stands convicted by the United Nations as an aggressor in Korea, where it killed and wounded many thousands of American and other soldiers who were defending peace."

"Because it continues to support aggression in Indochina, by giving substantial aid and by furnishing advisers and technicians to the Vietnamese forces."

"Because it occupied defenseless Tibet and seized control of its Government and resources."

"Because it sponsors guerrilla and subversive movements in Malaya and throughout the rest of Southeast Asia."

"Because it committed dreadful atrocities against Americans and others fighting for the United Nations in Korea and subjected prisoners to physical and mental cruelty in seeking to extort military secrets and confessions of alleged guilt."

"Because it still holds thirty-two American civilians under barbarous conditions without published charges and subjects these innocent missionaries, journalists and business men to cruel and inhuman treatment."

"Because it willfully fabricated and publicized false evidence of spurious germ warfare charges designed to blacken the reputation of the United States and otherwise carries on a deliberate 'Hate America' propaganda campaign."

"Because it has executed millions of its captive subjects, and forced other millions into slave labor."

"Because it even stoops to an international extortion racket in squeezing millions of dollars from overseas Chinese who try to buy safety and protection for their relatives at home."

This bill of particulars, the most complete I have ever seen, is tantamount to announcing to the world that the United States will employ its veto in the Security Council if an attempt is made to smuggle Red China into the United Nations.

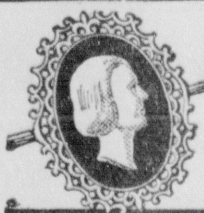

Were Red China admitted to the United Nations, public opinion in this country would beyond doubt demand that the United States withdraw from it. In many respects that would, at this stage of international relations, be a tragedy because, as Lodge pointed out, the alternative to talk is often war, and at this stage needs to be averted.

If the United Nations performs no other historic service than to delay World War III, that will be a task accomplished. We have been on the verge of World War III since 1945, but it has not happened.

Government red tape is reported to be responsible for a food shortage in Russia, but it should not be surprising that red tape is prevalent in Red Russia.

During World War II the country was full of prophets who predicted when it would end. But the cold war seems to have the prognosticators stymied.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

MRS. SERENA ADAMS dumped the basin of suds in the sink, removed a little mirror from a chair where it had been propped erect and polished its surface with her elbow before she hung it again on the kitchen wall.

"Now," she said, "you look like somebody."

In his wheel chair Mike Adams grunted, rubbing his hand over his shaved cheeks. "Dang near peeled me! You let me do it myself and my skin wouldn't burn for a week."

"Your hands shake and you let your beard grow too long. After that, I'm going to shave you every day. Now you sit still till I fetch you a clean shirt. She's not going to see you looking like a tramp."

"Sit still, she says! You ask me, she's lucky she can see me at all," he retorted, "acting the fool like she did."

"Listen now—" the old lady's voice rose—"you're not going to throw it up to her, not one time. You let me hear you even cheep it and you can sit in that chair till you rot and I wouldn't even fetch you a drink of water."

"You'd do it, too," he growled. "How you ever going to know why she did it if you don't ask her?"

"We ain't going to know because she don't know herself."

"She wrote it down, didn't she? It was in the paper."

"How do we know she wrote it? There was plenty around that place that was jealous of Farrie. They thought Albright favored her and likely he did. But she earned it, all these years, taking a lot of him, looking after those young ones of his, doing things a wife would have done for him if he had one. Anybody could have written that piece on the typewriter. It didn't have any name signed to it."

He wriggled in the chair as she jerked the shirt around him. "You got my arm twisted. Lemme do it myself."

"I don't reckon there's any use trying to get a necktie on you," she signed.

"What for? What you want to dudge me all up for? I ain't going any place."

"That nurse is coming with her. I wish he was sending a nurse along. I can do for her just as good as anybody and it's just one more for me to wait on."

"You mean that one that was here? Young teller. Had that girl with him?"

"Marshall, his name is. The girl was one of the Tabers from down Harpeth way. Old Mort Ravel's daughter married a Taber. You remember Mort?"

"Yeah, I recall him. He had this same thing I've got. Used to see a chauffeur lift him out of his car every time he came down to the courthouse."

Who profits from profit?

EVERYBODY PROFITS from profit. Here's how. Fifty years ago a good many men were going into the business of making automobiles—in the hope of making a profit.

Some of these men lost their investment, others made money. A few were very successful and they plowed back most of the profits into the business. Today the companies these men founded and nursed along provide more than 8 million highly paid jobs—and automobiles for 45 million families.

Look at it another way. Forty years ago a good workman made about $1.55 a day. Today the fellow with a comparable job makes $12 or more a day.

Back in 1910-1915 money invested in production machines averaged out to about $3500 per employee. Today the average employee has a "kit of tools" worth about $12,000. These better tools were made possible largely by the profits that were plowed back into the business.

Profit is not only important to owners. It's equally important to employees and customers. Progress depends on profit.

A family's progress, too, depends to a large degree on its yearly "profit." Plan your family spending so that you can deposit part of every pay check in a bank account—here, we suggest.

news behind

the news

WASHINGTON — Administration leaders on Capitol Hill are seeking Democratic cooperation for passage of a resolution endorsing any "reasonable" program for arresting Communist advances in Indochina, including limited American intervention. Under certain circumstances, the opposition may agree to bipartisan action.

Secretary Dulles advanced the idea at several secret conferences with congressional groups, but he did not insist upon immediate approval. Since his departure for the Geneva Conference that convened yesterday, GOP spokesmen have renewed the suggestion in cloakroom and informal conversations.

The Democrats will impose several conditions for obvious reasons. First, they demand that President Eisenhower, not Congress, assume the initiative and responsibility for American participation with ground, naval or air units. They figure that this will eliminate the "Korean police action," both Truman's start and Eisenhower's termination of that conflict, from next fall's election.

PLEDGE—In return, Dulles has given an unwritten pledge. At Geneva, he will not agree to recognition of Red China or its admission to the United Nations. He will denounce any attempt to negotiate a cease-fire arrangement or peace that will give the Communists a political, economic or military beachhead in Southeast Asia.

Despite partisan differences over foreign policy, both Democrats and Republicans are near together on defending Indochina than is generally realized. Both deplore the grim thought of fresh sacrifices of lives and treasure. But both concede that permanent loss of our Pacific bastions, China, Asia and possibly the Middle East and Africa, could mean the downfall of western civilization.

This awful prospect sobers and shocks even the most partisan. Asia has supplanted Europe as the chief cause of national concern.

PROGRAM—Certain political advantages, however, will accrue to the Democrats from the proposed pact. The "Eisenhower war" will offset the "Truman war," or, more realistically, it will eliminate both catcalls from the 1954-55 elections. Indeed, it will remove almost all Roosevelt-Truman foreign policy decisions, as well as the Missouriian's alleged tenderness toward Communies at Washington, from American politics.

The promised support will force the Administration to formulate a definite Indochina program, which it does not have at present. The White House seeks to save this vital area from Red control, but it has not devised any specific means to achieve that objective.

PROPOSAL—Admiral Arthur W. Radford has proposed that American aircraft carriers reinforce the beleaguered French and native forces immediately, and two have been dispatched to nearby waters. He points out that the land-based bombers are available to the French.

His three associates—Ridgway, Carney and Twining—oppose this strategy, as does Secretary Dulles. They argue that Communist capture of a single plane crew forced to bail out, would commit us to ground warfare. They insist that there can be no parttime participation. It must be all or nothing.

NEW THEORY—Radford, a MacArthur disciple, maintains that he knows Oriental psychology, strategy and tactics more thoroughly than his aides, who have not had his experience in the Far East. He insists that neither Peiping nor Moscow want or are prepared for all-out war. He believes that this is an excellent opportunity to test the new theory of "massive retaliation" at a time and place of our own choosing.

Although Radford has great influence on like in military matters, Dulles' view probably will prevail. He urges against a military offensive until after the close of the Geneva parley. He hopes that current signs of American determination on Indochina, especially the Nixon speech, may enable him to win an "honorable peace."

If he fails, he will press his request for a bipartisan declaration of limited and regional war in Southeast Asia.

4 Run Ninning Aids Tigers In 5 To 4 Victory

Dick Boyd's Tigers roared to a 5 to 4 baseball victory over Hillsboro at Ted Lewis Park Monday. Don Skinner gave up only five hits and struck out 11. Ron Bennington was the CHS hitting star with three singles.

Hillsboro led all the way with lone runs in the fourth and sixth. The Tigers got one in their half of the fifth but exploded with four runs in the sixth. Hillsboro got two more in the top of the seventh but that still left them one short.

The first three innings were scoreless. Hillsboro drew first blood in the fourth when Bill Barthelmas threw wild to the plate after the Tigers had Joe Cole trapped between third and home.

CHS tied it up in the fifth when Bennington reached second on an error and scored on an infield single by Tom Strasser. Hillsboro went into the lead again in the sixth when Skinner walked Woodard with the bases loaded.

JOE HILL started off the Tiger's big sixth with a double and went to third on a passed ball. He scored when Fred Styers was safe on an error. Bob Wellington laid down a sacrifice bunt sending Styers to third. But Dick Banks, batting for Risley, fanned the second out.

The top of the batting order then got three straight singles to account for the remaining three

Bob Brownson, Ohio coach of the year at Portsmouth High last season, will become the school's athletic director at $6,000 a year.

Bob Singerman, head football, basketball and track coach at Midvale High School, has resigned his post, effective at the end of the school year. No reason was given for the action.

Bob Vogt, voted the most valuable player on Akron's University's 1952 football team, was named basketball coach and junior varsity football coach yesterday at Cleveland's John Adams High School.

The Big Ten has decided "reluctantly" to go along with the NCAA's nationally-controlled television football program for 1954.

Colonels Keep Close To Tribe

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—The Louisville Colonels, only American Association team with any chance of catching up with league-leading Indianapolis in the immediate future, kept themselves within striking distance last night.

The Colonels beat Minneapolis 4-3 on a triple by Bob Broome and an infield single by Norm Zauch in the seventh inning.

The win kept the Colonels within a game and a half of Indianapolis, which won its sixth straight last night, beating Columbus 5-4.

Charleston, meantime, snapped a five-game losing streak, coming from behind for a 4-3 victory over Kansas City.

Trabert Admits He May Turn Pro

NEW YORK (AP)—United States Davis Cup ace Tony Trabert admitted today his biggest ambition is to turn professional and cash in on his talents.

"There's no use trying to kid anyone," Tony said. "I want to turn professional and get some money before it's too late. That's why I'm leaving school shortly. You can't concentrate on two things at once, and from now on, it will be strictly tennis with me."

The 23-year-old University of Cincinnati student was married several months ago and that probably changed his outlook.

Campy Ignores Broken Bones

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Roy Campanella, who has caught all 11 games for the Brooklyn Dodgers this season with a broken bone in his left hand, plans to stay in the regular lineup despite the spring training injury.

The injury was revealed for the first time yesterday by Dodger Vice-President E. J. (Butie) Bavasi in New York but both he and Campanella minimized the seriousness of the break.

While doctors have agreed no further harm would be done by continued playing with the injury, Bavasi said arrangements have been made for further x-rays to be taken in Cincinnati Thursday.

Johnstown Paces All-Star Team

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Johnstown Jets have placed wingmen Don Hall and Arnie Schmutz on the International Hockey League all-star team.

League coaches selected goalie Bill Tibbs of Toledo, center Gordon Vejprava of Marion, and defenseman Rolfe McLennan of Cincinnati and Al Turner of Grand Rapids for the remaining spots.

Undoubtedly a major impediment to any success of the United Nations is the extravagant propaganda that has been hurled at the world in favor of it. Too much has been said for it; too much has been expected of it.

After all, as Henry Cabot Lodge said:

"Now, the wars that don't happen are not dramatic. But there is real satisfaction in working in a place where you feel that sometimes you have helped prevent fighting and bloodshed even if it requires some verbal toe dancing and walking on eggs and what, to most of us, appears to be pettifoggery. There are some circumstances in international affairs when the best thing to do is to stall for time and give people a chance to cool off."

At most, the United Nations should be a parliament of nations, a meeting place, a vent for outbursts of anger, a bargaining counter for compromises. If the United Nations limited itself to this type of activity and gave up aspirations for world government, it would accomplish more without arousing so much suspicion, particularly among Americans who are not anxious to be governed by anyone but themselves.

Derby Trial May Tip Next Roses Winner

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Six three-year-old colts get their last chance today to prove their worthiness for the 80th running of the $100,000 added Kentucky Derby.

The mile and one-quarter of the derby will be run at Churchill Downs Saturday starting at 4:30 p. m., EST before the usual crowd of some 100,000 and thousands more who'll see the race on their television screens or hear it on their radios. It will be televised at 4 p. m.

Eight actually have been named for the $10,000 added trial but two of them—Andy Crevelin's well liked Determine and stablemate Allied—will be at the starting gate Saturday, regardless of what they do this afternoon. That is they will be unless struck by the injury jinx that has waylaid some half-dozen worthy derby candidates this spring, including the two winter book choices, Turn-To and Porthouse.

The trial, won by three derby winners—Citation in 1948, Hill Gail in 1953 and Dark Star last year—will go a long way toward deciding whether a record field will battle over the Downs' mile and a quarter for America's most coveted turf honor. The record number of starters is 22 in 1928, the year Reich Count won the big prize.

4 Run Inning Aids Tigers In 5 To 4 Victory

Dick Boyd's Tigers roared to a 5 to 4 baseball victory over Hillsboro at Ted Lewis Park Monday. Don Skinner gave up only five hits and struck out 11. Ron Bennington was the CHS hitting star with three singles.

Hillsboro led all the way with lone runs in the fourth and sixth. The Tigers got one in their half of the fifth but exploded with four runs in the sixth. Hillsboro got two more in the top of the seventh but that still left them one short.

The first three innings were scoreless. Hillsboro drew first blood in the fourth when Bill Barthelmas threw wild to the plate after the Tigers had Joe Cole trapped between third and home.

CHS tied it up in the fifth when Bennington reached second on an error and scored on an infield single by Tom Strawser. Hillsboro went into the lead again in the sixth when Skinner walked Woolard with the bases loaded.

JOE HILL started off the Tiger's big sixth with a double and went to third on a passed ball. He scored when Fred Stivers was safe on an error. Bob Wellington laid down a sacrifice bunt sending Stivers to third. But Dick Banks, batting for Risley, fanned the second out.

The top of the batting order then got three straight singles to account for the remaining three

National Guard Unit Here Discloses Summer Training Plans

Guardsmen Vie For Weekend Pentagon Trip

Boys Under 18 And Vets Are Explained Enlistment Benefits

A weekend trip to the Pentagon in Washington, D. C. will be awarded to the outstanding enlisted man from each National Guard company attending summer camp this year. This was announced by Capt. John McGinnis who commands the local Guard unit known as Company I, 166th Regimental Combat Team.

He also remarked that the unit will go to Indiantown Gap, Pa., for two weeks of summer training starting July 4. Other units attending the camp include: 107th Regiment, a former cavalry outfit; 372nd Infantry Regiment; 174th Field Artillery Battalion; 137th Military Police Battalion; and a military band.

"The first week of training at Indiantown Gap will be concentrated on individual specialties," Capt. McGinnis said. "Machinegunners will fire their weapons, field artillery will work on long and short range fire, and so forth.

"The second week will be devoted to combining all these specialties into co-ordinated maneuvers. For example, we will have a combined infantry-field artillery exercise. The big guns will lay down cover fire for the infantry to move up and attack."

NORMALLY, the unit must travel by bus, Capt. McGinnis commented. But, he noted, this year the men may use private transportation. McGinnis also pointed out that Company I will go to the rifle range in Chillicothe May 15 and 16. This is in addition to the summer training, he said.

McGinnis, a former city policeman here and now employed at the Chillicothe Reformatory, explained some of the advantages of joining the Guard and his unit in particular.

"Boys 17½ and former GI's should be especially interested," he commented. "If a boy enlists in our Company I before he is 18, he will be exempt from any future draft call. He will be able to learn many skills and be eligible to attend summer camp, for which he will receive two weeks pay.

"As to veterans, they have the opportunity to improve their ratings and pile up retirement points. Also they will be able to polish up on their past training and work towards being leaders of the future."

Advancement for boys without military experience and those who have already been in service is pointed up by the fact that one of Capt. McGinnis' officers was a sailor in World War II, an enlisted man in the Army over in Korea and is now a 1st Lt. McGinnis explained that this man took advantage of one of the educational programs offered, took certain tests and received his commission.

"As a matter of fact," McGinnis went on, "I would prefer to have all my officers in future come up through the ranks. Then they will know first hand the problems and be better able to provide intelligent solutions to various situations."

HE ADDED that many men were drafted for the Korean War under a situation which calls for two years active duty and six years reserve work. However, a man joining Company I here can retire his six year obligation in three years because this unit is in the active reserve, McGinnis said. He mentioned two men who have recently joined his company. One is Glen E. Picklesimer, 23, of Williamsport, who was a combat engineer in Korea. Another is Maynard Burns, who was a member of the well known 82nd Airborne Division during World War II.

The 166th fought as an infantry regiment in World War I as part of the famed 42nd "Rainbow" Division. They also served as part of the "Watch on the Rhine". After that war the unit was assigned to the 37th Division, Ohio National Guard.

In 1946 the 166th, together with 174th Field Artillery Battalion and the 191st Engineer Combat Company formed its present designation of the 166th RCT. This type of unit came about during the second world war. Up to that time most divisions were made up of four regiments. Reorganization cut this down to three regiments. That left one out in the virtual cold.

The Army then decided to make this unit a self sustaining one, efficient as a fighting force. Normally, infantry units rely on large artillery units which do the artillery work for many units. In an RCT this unit has its own artillery. Therefore there is more fighting power and mobility. These units were successfully used in amphibious operations in the Pacific.

The 166th, although a Reserve unit, has served on riot duty, fought forest fires and in general contributed to the domestic front. As Capt. McGinnis points out, duty is far from a dull routine.

"WE NEED some good men," he said. "You'll get the best possible training. Help us keep your Guard up."

Those interested can call Sgt. Gilmore at the Armory on E. Franklin St. in Circleville or phone 770.

Happy Days Again! Gross Has Tomato

Stand back, men! That first local tomato of the warm months is about to come off the vine!

And apparently the honors will go to the 1953 title-holder and still champion—Raymond Gross, an employee of Brehmer's Greenhouse. He reported Monday he has "one just about ready to pick—one that's already orange and red, and plenty good looking."

Although this would keep Gross in front as the year's first tomato reporter, he said he isn't at all interested in competing for the laurels. It's just that he has one "all ready to pick", and knew the tomato-eaters will be glad to hear about it.

Krandall said he would reward Hannan if the insurance company doesn't.

Tait Announces Purchases For CD Planning

Pickaway County Civil Defense Director Bernard Tait announced Monday the first purchases made to pump more enthusiasm into the district's emergency planning.

The county's Civil Defense picture, centered on Circleville, took on new life recently when City Council here agreed to set aside $500 for the program Tait has been trying to launch for many months. The Civil Defense chief said a matching amount has already been received from Pickaway County. Matching funds will also be available from both the federal and state governments to help pay for the newly purchased supplies and equipment.

Tait announced purchases as follows: A movie projector, screen and winder, $559; 12 films, $368; first aid supplies, $500. Tait said approximately $650 was left of the city-county allocation.

Cost of the first purchases, he explained, will be met as follows: Federal share of costs, $713.50; state share, $356.75; local (city-county) share, $356.75.

Post-Gatty Backer Dies At Age Of 76

OKLAHOMA CITY, (AP)—The oilman who financed the Post-Gatty flight around the world in 1931 died yesterday at 76, victim of a gall bladder ailment.

F. C. Hall's $100,000 gamble on Wiley Post, an unknown pilot distinguished by a patch over his bad eye, made Post a prominent figure in aviation history.

The tiny monoplane flown by Post and Harold Gatty, his navigator, was named the Winnie Mae after Hall's daughter, now Mrs. Kenneth A. Rogers.

Wasn't His Fault Trout Impatient

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—An enthusiastic fisherman out to beat the rush at Watoga State Park stretched his line a foot over the lake and waited until the 6 a.m. opening of trout season to drop it in.

It wasn't his fault, he protested, that a trout leaped up and snared the bait 10 minutes before the official opening time last Saturday morning.

That's one of the "facts" the Conservation Department uncovered in its survey of West Virginia fish and fishermen on the opening of trout season. The story was backed by testimony from four witnesses, said Harry D. Van Meter, acting chief of the Fish Management Division.
